CONFIDENTIALITY AGREEMENT

CONFIDENTIALITY AGREEMENT

It is agreed between the signatories and the businesses named below that:

- 1. All technical or commercial information plans for research and development, shape, configuration, design and function (methods of production) or other matters disclosed or to be disclosed by either party will be received and held in confidence by the recipient party.
- 2. All drawings, reports, samples and copies passed by either party to the other will remain the property of the donor party together with any copyrights or other intellectual property contained therein and will be returnable to the donor party upon demand or upon termination of further discussions.
- 3. Both parties shall take all reasonable steps to prevent unauthorised access, perusal or disclosure in whole or part to any other party who has not undertaken to act in confidence with respect to the other party without the written consent of that party.
- 4. All associates, contractors and consultants who act under contract to either party shall be required to undertake separate agreements of confidentiality whereas all contracted employees and associates of either party shall be considered to be bound by the signature on this agreement and that this agreement shall be binding after such employees leave either party's employ for a period of one year.
- 5. Both parties shall act in good faith towards the other and shall undertake to protect the intellectual property of the other in all matters which are confidential at the time of their presentation until such time as they become available within the public domain or can be proven to have previously been available to the recipient.
